Profile

Dennis Artese is a shareholder in Anderson Kill's New York office and is chair of the firm's Climate Change and Disaster Recovery practice group. He is also co-chair of the firm's Construction Industry group. Dennis's national practice concentrates on all types of insurance recovery litigation, with an emphasis on securing insurance coverage for property and business interruption losses stemming from natural disasters and other perils as well as for construction-related first-party property losses and third-party liability claims. Dennis has substantial experience in all phases of litigation, arbitration and property insurance appraisals, and has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars of insurance proceeds on behalf of policyholders in connection with a variety of property, builder's risk, commercial general liability, umbrella and excess liability, employment practices liability, D&O, E&O, crime, and political risk insurance claims. Dennis also has extensive experience in litigating workers' compensation collateral disputes, insurance broker malpractice cases and other general commercial litigation disputes, including construction-related disputes.

Dennis is the General and Climate Change Insurance Editor of the Journal of Emerging Issues in Litigation. He has been recognized by Super Lawyers for Insurance Coverage since 2012. He also has been recognized by Legal 500 for Insurance Advice to Policyholders and singled out as being a "superb lawyer and subject-matter expert." Clients reporting to Chambers USA attest that Dennis's client service, level of sophistication and commercial vision are very strong, and that "Dennis does an amazing job guiding us with difficult claims."

Dennis was awarded Anderson Kill's first Eugene R. Anderson Award, established in recognition of the extraordinary talent and leadership skills of its founder, Gene Anderson. The award goes to individuals who best exemplify Gene's "Twelve Principles," including excellent client service, exemplary work ethic, high level of personal satisfaction in professional practice, service to the firm, and conscientiousness.
